DANGER IN THE WATER

The Ohio River Water Fright fully Polluted and Poisoned.

PEOPLE WARNED AGAINST IT

Intil Effects of the Flood are Pass How to Purify the Water Cheaply and Quickly - City Health Officer Garrison's View.

The Pittaburgh Chronicle Telegraph of yesterday says that the people in that city are called on to be careful about the se of water, as an epidemic is appreended. This remark applies with force n Wheeling. The flood of water tha swept through Johnstown has cleaned out hundreds of cesspools. All these were filled with filth, the accumulation of years. The barn-yards, manure, dirt from henneries and swamps that were swept by the waters has all been carried down into the Allegheny river. In addition to this there are the bodies of persons drowned. Some of these will in all likelihood be secreted will in all likelihood be secreted among the debris and never found. Hundreds of carcasses of animals of various kinds are also in the river. These will putrify and decay, throwing out an animal poison that is the most injurious to the health of the community. All this filth and poisonous matter is being carried into the Allegheny and Ohio. It will be pumped up into the reservoir and distributed throughout the city. In such a case the result most probably will be the breeding of infectious and contagious diseases.

At the head of Fourteenth street in this city is a large, nover falling spring in the contaging of the contaging of the contaging the conta

At the head of Fourteenth street in this city is a large, never failing spring of pure water. All day yesterday residents in that section of the city were carrying water from this spring, some of them going several squares, with buckets, pitchers and jugs.

Of course this one spring will not begin to supply the demand for pure water. A famine in this regard can be overcome by the use of mineral waters, a large variety of which are on sale at the drug stores. Those who do not care to drink mineral waters, or who cannot afford to do so, need not, however, suffer for the want of water to drink. The impurities in the river water comimpurities in the river water coming from the reservoir and the germs of death it contains at this time, and must necessarily contain for the next few days, can be killed by the boiling process. All water used from the hydrants should be thoroughly boiled before taking into the stomach. If this suggestion is acted upon there will be no cause for uneasiness, and serious consequences will be avoided. Otherwise, the results might be disastrous to the health of the community. It will be observed that this all-important matter is referred to in the dispatches from Johnstown this morning. The sanitary committees have sent out the warning, and the people living along the Ohio river should heed it.

A physician who was interviewed on this subject advises a free use of lime: "The precipitation of the coxe and slime of rivers is dangerous when subjected to the sun's rays, and is favorable for the proliferation of bacterial germs, and a heavy coat of lime is about the best way to get rid of them.

"This should be done all along the valleys. I would then have the waters drawn off the city reservoirs one at a time, have them washed out and subjected to a quantity of lime also. This would purify the water and be healthful for the people, who get too little lime in the cities. mpurities in the river water com-ng from the reservoir and the germs of "The people must, if they would avoid danger, illter and boil all water used for domestic and potable purposes. When the water is turbid with mud it can be made beautifully clear by allowing it to stand in a vessel and adding three or four drops of the tincture of chloride of iron to the gallon, or a small amount of pulverized alum. These will cause all animal and vegetable matter, including bacteria, to precipitate to the bottom. The vessel ought to be covered tightly, because water is easily polluted from contact with air. Boiled water is insipid because of the evaporation of the air; a pinch of sult will give it a more pleasant taste,"

DR. GARRISON WARNS

The Public Against the Evils of Contam

nated River Water.
To the Editor of the Intelligencer:
Sin:—One of the most important facts to be gathered from history is the liability of human beings to be attacked by diseases of an epidemic nature. History, from the earliest records to the present day, furnishes more than sufficient. ient proof of this fact-for instance the BERCHAM'S PILIS cure bilious and sweating sickness of 1485, a disease which appears to be allied to the worst form of cholera, and to bear a close re-lation to malignant congestive fever; the Black plague of London in 1400 and 1635. The last visitation was the year before the great fire, which gave occasion for the rebuilding of a large portion of the city, and to improved sanitary of the city, and to improved sanitary arrangements.

The plague of Athens, as it was called, a fatal febrile disease, which raged at Athens during the Peloponnesion war, in the fifth century before the Christian ere, may be cited in illustration. Improved sanitary measures of modern times have largely contributed to immunity from such visitations, but with all the safeguards that it is possible to establish, no people are safe from the ravages of a pestilence, as evidenced by the devastating epidemics of cholera and yellow fever during the present century. In brief, from the year 1490, B.C., when 624,000 Israelites were destroyed by plague in the Wilderness, till the outbreak of cholera in France and Italy, history teems with the records of wholesale destruction of mankind by diseases of an epidemic character.

The recent swful destruction at Johnstown may have been only the foreumer of a greater calamity. The people of the Ohio and Mississippi Valleys are threatened with a calamity before which that of the people of Johnstown pales into insignificance. Thousands of bodies of human beings and other animals have been precipitated into the common source of water supply.

These bodies are now undergoing a putrefactive process, resulting in horrible contamination of the water.

Epoch.

The transition from long, lingering and painful sickness to robust health marks and epoch in the life of the individual. Such a remarkable event is treasured in the memory and the agency whereby the good health has been attained is gratefully blessed. Hence it is that so much is heard in praise of Electric Bitters. So many feel they owe their restoration to health, to the use of the Great Alternative and Tonic. If you are troubled with any disease of kidneys, liver or stomach, of long or short standing you will surely find relief by use of Electric litters. Porous rebacked porcelain is the best of all substances for domestic filters. When filtration is employed because of real danger of infection, the filtered water should be boiled, as the entire absence of sediment or cloudiness does not insure that the bacteria of disease have been aliminated. Boiling water kills harmful bacteria in thirty minutes.

Therefore I would most earneally enjoin the boiling of all drinking water for at least one-half hour, as the only absorbidely reliable protection against the dangers that lurk in it, and to drink no water other than mineral water, when away from home.
